About Metal coat rack covered with fawn-colored moleskin by Jacques Adnet – Compagnie des Arts français

Large coat rack, often called in French language “perroquet”, in metal covered with fawn-colored moleskin, the stitching entirely made by hand in saddle stitch. The foot consists of a circular base surmounted by a cross-shaped spacer. The spacer receives the central shaft punctuated in six different parts with relief inspired by faux bamboo. The end of the central shaft decorated with a gilded bronze element. At the level of the fifth element of the central shaft is placed a rotating circle receiving six large hooks with wide bottom hook and upper hook. The object, manufactured around 1960, is in very good condition. We were able to acquire this coat rack in the reserve of an Adnet furniture distributor, it has never been used, just has a slight patina due to the passage of time.
